COALITION BEING FORMED

New War Department Chief Has Served Under Two U. S. Executives

WASHINGTON, June 20—President Roosevelt moved today to form a coalition cabinet when he nominated Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, and Henry L. Stimson of New York to posts as secretary of the navy and of war, respectively.

Knox will replace Charles Edison, son of the late inventor, who resigned recently to campaign for the New Jersey governorship, and Stimson will become secretary of war replacing Harry Woodring, who just resigned.

Knox was the Republican party's nominee for vice president in 1936. Stimson served as secretary of state in the Hoover administration and as secretary of war in the Taft cabinet.

Woodring's resignation, capital advisers said, was "so full of personal reasons" that it will not be made public.

Knox' confirmation is expected before June 24 when Edison's resignation becomes effective.

The President's cabinet, after confirmation of Knox and Stimson, will include five Democrats and four Republicans. Before 1932 Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace and Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes were classified as Republicans.

Reports from Washington several weeks ago hinted that Knox and Alf Landon, Kansas, nominee for the presidency in 1932, would be offered cabinet posts. Landon said he would be pleased to serve if the President announced that he would not be his party's nominee for the presidency again.

Former Bank Bookkeeper To Hear Penalty For Taking $14,000

Underwood To Pronounce Decision After Study By Investigators

Mrs. Mildred Karshner, ex-bookkeeper for the First National Bank, went before Judge Mell G. Underwood in Federal Court, Columbus, Thursday afternoon to hear the penalty she must pay for embezzling about $14,000 from the financial institution which employed her for 15 years.

Mrs. Karshner entered a plea of guilty last Thursday, but her sentence was delayed pending an investigation by officers of the court, requested by Joe W. Adkins, Jr., her attorney. Adkins said that mitigating circumstances should provide a reduced sentence.

A recent federal grand jury indicted her on four charges, one of embezzling and three of making false entries in the bank's books. She said that she had used the money to bet on race horses and that she had taken more to recoup her losses.

Mrs. Karshner has been in the custody of U. S. Marshal Charles (Chob) Sisson since last Thursday when her bond was recalled.

The alleged criminal acts dated from August 31, 1936, to December 23, 1939, when she confessed her acts.

CLERK OF SCHOOL CITED IN THEFT OF $500 MONTHLY

BOWLING GREEN, June 20—Prosecutor Floyd A. Collier, of Wood County, declared today that John C. Reed, 47, Ross Township board of education clerk, had admitted embezzling at least $500 a month from the district's school funds for the last two years.

Prior to that time, Collier alleged, Reed had admitted taking "about $200 a month" for five years. According to estimates made by the prosecutor and State School Examiner A. H. Harlett, Reed allegedly embezzled funds in excess of $20,000. Reed's alleged confession revealed that he had written false bills, had them signed by the board president and then issued checks for the amounts. According to the confession, he signed the checks in pencil and when they were paid and cancelled, the pencil endorsement was erased.

WASHINGTON, June 20—Nine Americans who were passengers on the S. S. Niagara of the Canadian-Australasian line, sunk by an explosion near New Zealand yesterday, have been safely landed at Auckland, the American consulate general at Wellington reported today to the State Department.

After a check of its passport files against the names reported by the consulate general, the department said that those saved were believed to be:

Barto Hill, Portland, Ore.; Clarence Reeves, Columbus, O.; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Rowley, Weirsdale, Fla.; Miss Rowley, address not given; George Harbe, address not given; George J. Brangier, Farmers Road, Honolulu, Hawaii; Marcia De Forest Post, Providence, R. I.; and Ethel Florence Thompson, Seattle, Wash.

Nazis and British Raid Foes' Cities

Many Planes Pour Bombs On Communities Over Wide Area; German Ruhr Blasted

BERLIN, June 20—Accepting final and complete capitulation of France as a foregone conclusion, Nazi Germany turned full attention to the destruction of Great Britain today.

The German high command announced inauguration of "retaliatory" air attacks on England, with an important nitrogen works at Billingham bombed and other military objectives successfully attacked.

So far as France is concerned, the high command announced capture of 200,000 additional prisoners, including General Altmeyer, commander of the Tenth French Army, and officials pointed to this claim as proof that France has now been "blacked out" militarily and politically regardless of whether she accepts or rejects the German-Italian peace terms.

Struggle Matter of Days

It is merely a matter of days, German spokesmen declared, before the last region of resistance in France is blanketed by the swiftly-advancing Nazi troops.

The time and place of armistice negotiations will be announced during the day.

"But the whole procedure in any case is just a matter of form," one highly placed Nazi official said.

"The sort of eleventh-hour miracle which saved France in 1914 has failed to occur in 1940."

Authentic German quarters in both Paris and Berlin emphasized that the Reich has now one basic determination — to make French capitulation complete, break French continental might for the balance of the twentieth century and split the Anglo-French combination for all time.

No appeals to sentiment or mercy will alter this determination, it was said.

With regard to the French peace delegation, which is known to include General Charles L. C. Huntzinger, this official said:

"The French delegates will be treated with stiff courtesy."

But the sadistic spirit in which the French carried out the Compiègne (1918 armistice) talks will not and cannot be paralleled by the Germans.

"Such is not our mentality."

COLUMBUS, June 20 — Brig. Gen. Campbell B. Hodges, commander of the Fifth Corps Area, today was authorized by the War Department to immediately start recruiting of 3,000 more men for the army.

The new quota must be filled by Aug. 31, General Hodges said. A June quota of 1,875 has already been filled. New recruits may come from Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia, which comprise the fifth corps area.

Any single man without dependents who is between the ages of 18 and 35 and who can meet army requirements is eligible for recruiting, Hodges pointed out.

Peace Delegation Not Yet Informed Of Armistice Terms; Petain Tells People How, Why Nation Lost In Conflict

TOULON PLEDGES TO CONTINUE FIGHT

"Too Few Children, Too Few Arms," Says Premier In Emotion-Filled Address; Nazis Claim Capture Of 200,000

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE
A French peace delegation, somewhere behind the Franco-German battleline or possibly waiting to cross that line, today awaited the pleasure of the German victors in setting a time and place for delivery of their peace terms.

His voice shaking with emotion, World War Hero Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, now premier of France, told the French people why it had been found necessary to appoint the French delegation to seek the armistice.

"Too few children! Too few arms. Too few allies... were the cause of our defeat."

The phrase "too few children" undoubtedly meant too few French soldiers, always referred to as "my children" by French army commanders.

A Rome radio report picked up in London—but wholly unconfirmed—said that the French and Germans already had met and that a "cease fire" order, tomorrow or Saturday, would signalize effectiveness of the peace terms.

What those terms will be is still a secret, known probably by the German high command, possibly the joint secret of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

Nazis Say France Finished

But there was little doubt of the firm Nazi conviction that France is finished—that it is Britain's turn now to feel the full impact of Germany's mechanized military might. Germany, in fact, merely pointed to the latest success — the capture of 200,000 additional prisoners with their commander, General Altmeyer of the Tenth French Army — as additional confirmation that a black-out of France is an accomplished fact.

Acceptance or rejection of the German peace terms, the Germans said, cannot alter the fact that France has been defeated. Crushing of the last French resistance will be only a matter of days, the Germans claim.

So convinced are the Nazis of the fruits of victory that in announcing that time and place of armistice negotiations would be made known today, a German spokesman said.

"The whole procedure in any case is just a matter of form."

Conflicting reports from various sources left the status of Franco-German armistice moves even more confused and obscure than ever.

While there was no confirmation from any source of reports that the French had rejected German terms as too exacting, there was still no sign of any "final" and complete French surrender.

Nazi Warplanes Bomb Bordeaux, Where 3,000 U. S. Citizens Remain

NEW YORK, June 20 — Helen Hiett, National Broadcasting Company correspondent in France, reported today German warplanes carried out five intensive bombing raids on Bordeaux, temporary seat of the French Government, where some 3,000 American refugees are reported stranded.

Miss Hiett reported that the first raid occurred at 12:30 a. m. (French time) and that four more raids followed within an hour.

She said that when the first air raid alarm sounded, she and other correspondents rushed to shelter in a cellar coal bin.

Therefore, she said, she could not give a complete report of damage or casualties. But she declared the raiders could be heard as they swooped over the city at a low altitude and the roar of their motors combined with bursting bombs and anti-aircraft fire made a terrific din.

Some of the areas hit, she said, were crowded with refugees, thousands of whom have jammed Bordeaux. Miss Hiett said she remained in the shelter an hour and 50 minutes in belief that "prudence is the better part of valor."

"The raid came as a complete surprise," she declared, "because Bordeaux, together with all other French cities of more than 20,000 population was declared an open city by the French Government."

WILLKIE'S AIDES MOVE TO BLOCK TAFT AND DEWEY

PHILADELPHIA, June 20 — A drive to line up delegates held by Wendell Willkie, Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, and Gov. Arthur H. James of Pennsylvania into a solid block to back Willkie for the Republican presidential nomination developed today.

At the same time it was understood the Willkie forces were seeking to drive deeper the wedge between supporters of Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Thomas E. Dewey of New York—this to prevent any possible Taft-Dewey tie-up which would automatically kill the chances of other aspirants.

The double-edged move on behalf of Willkie came as delegates from all over the country continued to pour into Philadelphia in preparation for the G. O. P. convention, now only four days away and looming as one of the most wide open affairs in recent political history.

Taft and Dewey were still considered the strongest candidates, with most observers contending the Ohio Senator would have the greatest number of votes on the first ballot, but with all agreeing the two would share more than 600, or well over 501 needed to nominate.

Willkie, however, had become definitely the strongest "outsider."

Uncle Sam's Efficient Marine Corps Ready For Any Emergency In West

QUANTICO, Va., June 20—The fleet force of the U. S. Marines — 2,400 fully equipped, veteran troops — today are prepared to embark on two hours notice if European war developments force a crisis over island possessions of France in the Western Hemisphere. Typical of marine corps preparedness was a conversation at staff headquarters between a brigadier general and an officer commanding a battalion. The general asked: "Are you all packed?" "All ready, sir," replied the officer. Full details of the embarkation plan, it was learned, have been worked out in advance so that there will be no loss of time if the marines are ordered into action. The marines it was pointed out, occupy a unique position in the U. S. military establishment. They were created as an expeditionary force, and can move into any foreign country without formal declaration of war if the President orders it on the grounds that American interests are threatened. All Details Worked Out For that reason, the marines stationed in the Quantico post are ready for instant action. Time tables have been worked out. If ordered to move, the marines probably would entrain for Norfolk, Va., and board troop ships. Marine corps commanders know almost to the minute how long it will take to move the fleet force, fully equipped, together with airplane and tank squadrons, to any point in the Western Hemisphere. Europe's war has heightened the morale of the marines, according to veteran officers. Marines in bayonet practice and field maneuvers of Quantico's 6,000 acres yell like wild Indians in mock attacks. Blitzkrieg warfare, the officers said, hold no terror for them. A veteran marine officer was asked if he thought the marines could force a landing on a hostile shore in the face of modern, mechanized opposition. His reply was: "Landings are always difficult." It was obvious that he was confident that, if the marines were ordered to effect a landing, they would do it. The marines, it was recalled, were "blitzkrieging" long before Europe's latest war started. In past campaigns, the marines used airplane squadrons as advance attack. (Continued on Page Four)

Rowland Urges Citizens To Refrain From Okeh Of Various Schemes

BIGELOW PLANS CITED

Proposals Too Often Are Unworkable, Crack-Pot, Ambiguous

The surest way to keep "fantastic, impractical and screw-ball schemes" out of the Ohio Constitution is to keep them off the ballot.

This was the purport of an appeal to voters issued Thursday by the Pickaway County Council of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, to avoid indiscriminate signing of petitions to obtain state-wide support on various proposed amendments to the Ohio Constitution.

"And the surest way to keep proposed unfeasible constitutional amendments off the ballot is to prevent sufficient signatures for legal requirements," said Ray E. Rowland chairman of County Council.

Petitions to place a number of proposed amendments on the November ballot are in preparation and are being circulated in many cases.

These proposals too often are "unwise, unworkable, practically impossible — crack-pot schemes" that would wreck the state financially and destroy representative government, Mr. Rowland explained.

"Therefore, it behooves everyone to give careful consideration to every petition before he signs it," he said.

Pension Plans Cited

"Bigelow pension plan proponents and the 'Ham 'n Eggs' are on the march again in Ohio. The people of this state who rejected the Bigelow scheme last November will have their fight over again in November if the proposal gets on the ballot. And they may have to fight the notorious California plan—the 'Ham 'n Eggs,' or 'Thirty Dollars Every Thursday' proposal, also."

Mr. Rowland pointed out that the new Bigelow pension plan is the same proposal defeated last fall dressed up with some refinements and with some ambiguities removed.

"But it is the same old Bigelow plan, proposing pensions of $50 a month to single persons over 60, and $80 to married couples, less the recipient's NET income from other sources. It proposes fantastic financing similar to that of the 1939 model—a state income tax equal to 25 percent of the Federal income tax, and 2 percent tax on all real estate valued at $20,000 or more an acre, exclusive of buildings and improvements."

Another proposed amendment which, Mr. Rowland declared should not be permitted to reach the ballot is that designed to abolish individual county representation.

Eight Counties Favored

This proposed amendment, called the legislative reapportionment amendment, would divide the state into 35 senatorial districts of approximately 200,000 population with one senator and four representatives from each district. Contiguous counties, or part of counties, would be combined to obtain a district of 200,000 population. Under the amendment the eight most populous counties would have more representatives than the other eighty counties combined.

"The best thing to do this year," Mr. Rowland said, "is to refuse to sign any petitions calling for state-wide support regardless of the arguments of the petition circulator. Or at least, don't sign until after a thorough study is made. Do not take another's word. Think Before You Sign."

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking poisons and acid wastes out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filter don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizzy spells.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 44 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

COUNTY COUNCIL OF C. OF C. HITS BALLOT ISSUES

Rowland Urges Citizens To Refrain From Oking Of Various Schemes

BIGELOW PLANS CITED

Proposals Too Often Are Unworkable, Crack-Pot, Ambiguous

The surest way to keep "fantastic, impractical, and screw-ball schemes" out of the Ohio Constitution is to keep them off the ballot.

This was the purport of an appeal to voters issued Thursday by the Pickaway County Council of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, to avoid indiscriminate signing of petitions to obtain state-wide support on various proposed amendments to the Ohio Constitution.

"And the surest way to keep proposed unfeasible constitutional amendments off the ballot is to prevent sufficient signatures for legal requirements," said Ray E. Rowland chairman of County Council.

Petitions to place a number of proposed amendments on the November ballot are in preparation and are being circulated in many cases.

These proposals too often are "unwise, unworkable, practically impossible — crack-pot schemes" that would wreck the state financially and destroy representative government, Mr. Rowland explained.

"Therefore, it behooves everyone to give careful consideration to every petition before he signs it," he said.

Pension Plans Cited

"Bigelow pension plan proponents and the 'Ham 'n' Eggers' are on the march again in Ohio. The people of this state who rejected the Bigelow scheme last November will have their fight over again in November if the proposal gets on the ballot. And they may have to fight the notorious California plan—the 'Ham 'n' Eggs', or 'Thirty Dollars Every Thursday' proposal, also."

Champ Needs Knockout To Gain Lost Prestige

Odds Of 6 Or 5 To 1 Favor Louis As Hour For Godoy Bout Nears; 30,000 May Witness Yankee Stadium Tilt

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, June 20—Joe Louis stands today in the paradoxical position of a super-fighter who everlastingly is being called on to prove it. Tonight he will defend his world heavyweight championship against Arturo Godoy, the rough-hewn Chilean, and the paramount question is whether Louis will score a knockout or be forced to go the 15 rounds to a decision. That he will win seems to be a foregone conclusion, but if he fails to iron Godoy out and starch him stiff, then the clamor will be on again that Louis has slipped.

A. L. FOES LAUD TIGER PITCHING

Detroit Wins Double; Yanks Falling; Dickey Goes On Bench; Allen In Form

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, June 20—Detroit's pennant bid is given due consideration everywhere today, but nowhere is the upsurge of the Tigers taken more seriously than in the organization of the New York Yankees.

Just how serious the Detroit threat is may best be judged by the words of one of the old Yankee scouts who said today: "A month ago I was sure we had the best pitching in our league. Now I must admit Detroit's pitching is tops. We still look best on paper but on the mound—where it counts—the Tigers are showing us something."

It needs only a glance at the records to show how well Newsum, Bridges, Rowe, Garsica, Newhouse, Benton and the rest of the Tiger moundmen have been pitching. This pitching, plus the power generated by Greenberg, Gehring, et al, is more than enough to give the staggering Yanks, the slipping Red Sox, and the dissident Indians the heebie-jeebies.

Buck Newsom had to travel 10 heats to earn his eight straight victory yesterday but he made it over the Athletics, 5 to 4. Then Schoolboy Rowe took over in the second game and, with a little help from Benton in the ninth, won his fifth straight by a 9 to 4 count.

Lee Wins 1 to 0
Meanwhile the Yanks were blowing a 1-0 decision to Southpaw Thornton Lee and the White Sox, and the Red Sox were being trimmed by the Browns, 6 to 4.

Chief interest in the Yankee defeat rests in the fact that Catcher Bill Dickey, for years the main cog in the Yankee attack, was benched in favor of Buddy Rosar.

The Red Sox built up an early four run lead for Herb Hash, but he couldn't hold it against the hustling Brownies who are no longer a pushover for anybody.

The Tigers are now only half a game behind the league-leading Red Sox. The Indians also gained ground by trimming the Senators, 4-1, behind the steady pitching of Johnny Allen.

There was little action in the National yesterday. Bowman pitched the Pirates to a 5-1 decision over the Bees and in a night game at Brooklyn, the Dodgers crushed the Cardinals, 8-3.

BIG PLANE MAKER

MINNEAPOLIS.—Not Douglas, Lockheed, Glenn Martin, Boeing, Curtiss-Wright or United Aircraft, but Scott-Atwater Manufacturing Co., of Minneapolis is believed to be the world's biggest volume aircraft maker. The company is reported to have just completed its 6,400,000th model airplane that will fly.

ATTENDED SIX COLLEGES

LUBBOCK, Tex.—James Ortiz, 26-year-old Spaniard from Santa Fe, N. M., who will be graduated at Texas Technological College in June, doesn't find a college education necessarily ties the student to one spot. Ortiz has attended in addition to Texas Tech—West Texas State College, Mexico City University, Georgetown University and George Washington and Catholic Universities of Washington, D. C.

D. A. TO LISTEN TO 'BEAN' YARN

New York Official Asks Ball Players To Visit His Office Thursday

NEW YORK, June 20—Leo Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and three other witnesses of the "bean ball" accident that befell Outfielder Joe (Ducky) Medwick of the Dodgers in Tuesday's game were invited to discuss the incident with the district attorney's office today.

District Attorney Burton A. Turkin visited Medwick at Caledonian Hospital and found the $200,000 outfielder disinclined to view his "beaning" seriously. He said he had never been threatened by any member of the Cardinal team as President Larry MacPhail of the Brooklyn Dodgers had heatedly intimated.

Invitations to discuss the case at the district attorney's office were given to Pitcher Robert Bowman, who hurled the ball that struck Medwick, and several other Cardinal players.

Medwick was able to sit up last night and tuned in the Brooklyn Dodgers night game which was marked by another altercation, this time between Manager Leo (Lippy) Durocher of the Dodgers and Catcher Mickey Owen of the Cards. Owen took offense at a remark by Durocher while the St. Louis catcher was on his way to the bench after sliding into Pete Coscarart at second base to break up a threatened double play in the third inning. The two men squared off, but order was quickly restored and Owen was banished from the field.

ROME CLAIMS 'CEASE FIRE' DECREE NEAR

cast a proclamation by the French vice admiral in command of Toulon, stating that important French Mediterranean port and naval base will be defended "by all available means if it is attacked."

But while uncertainty shrouded the French situation, there was no doubt that the prelude to the Battle of Britain is under way.

Six civilians were killed and 60 were injured by German bombers which ranged up and down the entire length and breadth of England and South Wales for five hours during the night, dropping hundreds of bombs and drawing terrific anti-aircraft fire in return. Three of the bombers were shot down, it was reported.

British authorities announced that Royal Air Force planes bombed military objectives in western Germany, the Ruhr and the Rhineland and successfully attacked German planes on the ground at airdromes near Amiens and Rouen in France.

In Turkey fear grew that Russia plans to take over the Dardanelles and Bosphorus on the same pretext that she sent the Red army forces marching into Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia. Confiscation of automobiles for military use began in Istanbul and it was reported that evacuation of Adrianople was under way as a precautionary measure.

Quantities of war materials were evidently being shipped from Istanbul to Turkish Thrace.

Carol Calls Sima

The wild scramble of Balkan nations to line up in favor of Germany continued with reports that Prof. Horia Sima, Romanian iron guard leader who yesterday went from jail to a conference with King Carol will be a member of the next Romanian cabinet. He was said to have promised Carol that the once-outlawed iron guard will refrain from terrorism.

The Bulgarian premier confidently predicted quick satisfaction of his nation's territorial claims. A new pro-German Yugoslavian government was expected within a few days.

In the Far East British and French authorities kept a close watch on developments in French Indo-China as a result of Japanese demands that it halt all shipments of military supplies to China. Japanese armed forces were reported concentrated on and around Hainan Island.

Japanese ambassadors in Berlin and Rome were instructed to inform those governments of Japan's "grave concern" regarding Indo-China.

A Reuters dispatch said the Japanese blockade against the British and French concessions will be lifted today following yesterday's settlement of the Anglo-Japanese Tientsin dispute.

BOYS PUT UNDER BOND IN THEFTS OF BRASS

After confessing their part in the theft of $400 worth of brass fittings from engines at the Stum and Dillard Company, three Circleville youths, Leroy Starkey, 18, Logan Street; George Strawser, 19, West Huston Street, and Charles Hill, 21, Maplewood Avenue, were placed under $500 bonds by Mayor William Cady Wednesday afternoon. Two of the boys, Starkey and Strawser, were committed to county jail, in default of payment, Hill provided bond and was released.

Two other boys believed to be connected with the theft, Walter Starkey, 13, and his brother Charles, 16, were brought before Probate Judge Lemuel Weldon, Thursday. He decided to continue the case until further evidence can be obtained. Harley (Peck) Smith, questioned about the same theft after he was caught with the other boys June 5, and later released, was sent to the Boys' Industrial School near Lancaster last week on charges of stealing numerous articles from five Circleville establishments.

Laurelville farmer wants others to know what to take if they suffer also from constipation and sluggish kidney action.

"For quite a while I had suffered from inactive kidneys, also there was hardly a day that I wasn't constipated, and this combination brought many symptoms that made me feel bad; a few I'll mention here, such as dizzy feelings, spots darting before my eyes, coated tongue, bad breath, brassy taste in my mouth almost every morning, blood rushing to my head when I stooped over, aches and pains in my arms, shoulders, back, and down through my limbs, and broken sleep," says Mr. Raymond Hedges, young farmer of Laurelville, near Circleville.

"I hadn't been taking Vendol long, before I knew I had the right medicine, because it gave the most satisfying relief I'd gotten in a long time from constipation, and my kidneys began to act more freely; then those other troubles grew less and less as I tack units for ground troops. Today's dive bombers had their fore-runner in the marine corps. One of the most effective blows ever delivered by the marines—during a campaign to suppress a bandit leader—was struck by dive bombers. The bandit leader never again led his forces.

Landing Barge Developed

Because of the mountainous terrain, no tanks were used in that campaign. But the marines, keeping abreast of modern warfare, have developed a means of landing tanks even under enemy fire. Snub-nosed, heavily-armored landing barges, carrying tanks, have been developed. They can operate in even the shallowest water.

One vital need of the marine troops at Quantico is modern fighting planes. Some of their ships are four or five years old. However, they have prepared what air equipment they have for all possible emergencies. NEW YORK, June 20 — Seemingly in the finest condition he has attained since that night two years ago when he knocked Max Schmeling into a hospital, Joe Louis today was weighed in at a surprising 199 pounds for his repeat 15-round heavyweight championship defense against Arturo Godoy at Yankee Stadium tonight.

The South American challenger scaled 201½ and thus both principals were below the weight they carried into the ring last February in their first meeting.

Louis weighed 203 pounds and Godoy 202 for the previous and fantastic encounter, which Louis won on a decision.

Nazis and British Raid Foes' Cities

may have resigned, all indications here pointed to intense confusion within the ranks of political France. It was stated that Foreign Minister Paul Baudouin definitely will not be among the French delegates.

Briefly, Germany already regards France's downfall as a "fait accompli," with the offensive against England now the major item on the Nazi program. The Germans do not hide the fact that they expect "rough and tumble" and furious warfare against the British.

Long pent-up Nazi resentment and bitterness against the "English overlords" will make themselves felt in this campaign, it was said.

Regardless of the British defense, Nazi spokesmen declared, England will not be able to resist the German offensive.

German officers who served in the French invasion emphasized that even the strongest key-points of the Maginot Line crumbled and cracked like box-wood when the air force unleashed huge new bombs which plummeted through forty feet of cement and steel and then exploded.

French prisoners were quoted as saying: "It was like a veritable earthquake. Even in the deepest part of the Maginot Line we could not stand it."

Latest reports said that all along the Maginot Line all but one of Belfort's huge bastions have now been taken, leaving only the fleet as the real nucleus of French resistance. The French air force, German officials declared, has collapsed.

LONDON, June 20 — Killing six civilians and injuring 60 amid the din of exploding bombs and roaring anti-aircraft fire, German planes carried out another series of air raids against Great Britain today for the second time within 24 hours.

More than 100 German planes participated. The raids were the most extensive yet carried out over Britain.

An official announcement listed the casualties at six dead and 60 injured. Authorities said at least three German bombers had been shot down during the attack which appeared to be another Nazi move in preparation for the Battle of Britain that Prime Minister Winston Churchill predicted.

While the German craft dropped bombs over the widest area of England yet raided, British planes carried out more lightning raids against the Germans.

An official announcement said Royal Air Force planes heavily bombed military objectives and communications in the Ruhr, the Rhineland and western Germany throughout the night and successfully attacked enemy aircraft on the ground at airdromes near Amiens and Rouen in France.

Hangars Set Afire

Hangars at these airports were set on fire, the British announcement said.

The assault by the German bombers ranged over virtually the entire length and breadth of England and South Wales. It lasted for five hours.

Many high explosives and incendiary bombs were dropped on a town in the northwestern region, where there were numerous casualties and heavy damage to houses.

The bombers revisited towns in the east, northeast and along the south coast, but in these districts caused little damage despite bomb explosions that lasted most of the night.

At several points German bombers crossed the coastline singly every few minutes. They were met by terrific anti-aircraft fire and resistance from British pursuit planes.

Local British defense volunteers were called out to watch for possible parachute troops. Civilians spent the five hours in air raid shelters, playing phonographs and singing. Some took their bedclothes with them and slept despite the noise.

50 Leaders Act

On the eve of parliament's secret session on home defense, 50 members met privately and passed eight resolutions outlining measures they considered the government should adopt to put British defenses in order.

Three of the resolutions were sent to the prime minister immediately. The called for plans to enroll the entire population for home defense, appointment of a special minister to take charge of "fifth column" and espionage precautions and the raising of a foreign legion.

It doesn't seem logical that nations must have war in order to have peace.

GERMAN CONSUL GUARDED FROM DEATH THREAT

PHILADELPHIA, June 20 — Police today guarded the home and office of Erich Windels, German consul in Philadelphia, following receipt of an alleged death threat turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

A crudely worded letter warned Windels to leave the country immediately under pain of death, it was reported. The note also threatened a prominent German-American living in the exclusive suburban main line district, it was said.

cast a proclamation by the French vice admiral in command of Toulon, stating that important French Mediterranean port and naval base will be defended "by all available means if it is attacked."

But while uncertainty shrouded the French situation, there was no doubt that the prelude to the Battle of Britain is under way.

Six civilians were killed and 60 were injured by German bombers which ranged up and down the entire length and breadth of England and South Wales for five hours during the night, dropping hundreds of bombs and drawing terrific anti-aircraft fire in return. Three of the bombers were shot down, it was reported.

British authorities announced that Royal Air Force planes bombed military objectives in western Germany, the Ruhr and the Rhineland and successfully attacked German planes on the ground at airbases near Amiens and Rouen in France.

In Turkey fear grew that Russia plans to take over the Dardanelles and Bosphorus on the same pretext that she sent the Red army forces marching into Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia. Confiscation of automobiles for military use began in Istanbul and it was reported that evacuation of Adrianople was under way as a precautionary measure.

Quantities of war materials were evidently being shipped from Istanbul to Turkish ships.

Carol Calls Sima

The wild scramble of Balkan nations to line up in favor of Germany continued with reports that Prof. Horia Sima, Romanian iron guard leader who yesterday went from jail to a conference with King Carol will be a member of the next Romanian cabinet. In the Far East British and French authorities kept a close watch on developments in French Indo-China as a result of Japanese demands that it halt all shipments of military supplies to China. Japanese armed forces were reported concentrated on and around Hainan Island.

Japanese ambassadors in Berlin and Rome were instructed to inform those governments of Japan's "grave concern" regarding Indo-China.

A Reuters dispatch said the Japanese blockade against the British and French concessions will be lifted today following yesterday's settlement of the Anglo-Japanese Tientsin dispute.

BOYS PUT UNDER BOND IN THEFTS OF BRASS

After theft of $400 worth of brass fittings from engines at the Stum and Dillard Company, three Circleville youths, Leroy Starkey, 18, Logan Street; George Strawser, 19, West Huston Street, and Charles Hill, 21, Maplewood Avenue, were placed under $500 bonds by Mayor William Cady Wednesday afternoon. Two of the boys, Starkey and Strawser, were committed to county jail, in default of payment. Hill provided bond and was released.

Two other boys believed to be connected with the theft, Walter Starkey, 18, and his brother Charles, 16, were brought before Probate Judge Lemuel Weldon, Thursday. He decided to continue the case until further evidence can be obtained. Harley (Peck) Smith, questioned about the same theft after he was caught with the other boys June 5, and later released, was sent to the Boys' Industrial School near Lancaster last week on charges of stealing numerous articles from five Circleville establishments.

SESSION NEARS CLOSE

All Other Measures Asked
By Administration Win
Sufficient Votes

COLUMBUS, June 20—Legislation permitting Ohio corporations to manufacture implements of war for national defense took the spotlight today as the 93rd General Assembly prepared to wind up its special session by acting swiftly on the last of emergency measures submitted by Governor Bricker.

In a last minute message, Bricker urged the legislature to authorize industry to aid in the defense program. The assembly responded with lightning speed by passing the Ward-Blum bill by a vote of 32-0 in the Senate and 119-0 in the House.

(Under existing laws, Ohio concerns are limited to manufacture articles for which they were organized.)

Final action by the Senate on the Hayden bill to boost Old Age Pensions from a maximum of $30 to $40 per month and the Roberts bill to increase aid to needy blind was all that remained before the legislature adjourned.

Meeting To End

Legislative leaders predicted that the entire emergency program would be completed this afternoon to permit members to attend the Republican National convention which opens in Philadelphia Monday.

Previously, in sessions that lasted until midnight, the upper and lower chambers completed passage of bills that split the national and state tickets, appropriated additional funds for relief, old age pensions and dependent children, and authorized Ohio corporations to manufacture implements of war.

In addition to those mentioned, the Republican-dominated Assembly passed numerous resolutions, and the Senate confirmed appointments made by the governor since the regular session adjourned last year.

Opposition by business organizations on the proposal to increase pensions to $40 per month and the Democratic minority on the entire program had little or no effect on the way the GOP-controlled Assembly voted on the various measures.

Despite concerted opposition by the Ohio Chamber of Commerce and other business and industrial organizations, Senate leaders predicted that the upper Chamber would pass the Hayden bill calling for an increase in Old Age pensions to a maximum of $40 per month.

No opposition was expected in the Senate on the Roberts bill which would increase aid to needy blind persons from $400 to $480 per year and place county employees engaged in administration of such funds under civil service. The Hayden bill was passed last night by the House by a vote of 109-7. Those voting against the measure were Representatives Wilford B. Bixler (D-Summit); Joseph R. Duffy (D-Cuyahoga); Evans Griffith (R-Portage); Denver A. Ford (R-Fulton); George J. Harter (D-Summit); Thomas P. McElroy (D-Putnam); and L. A. Morehead (R-Harrison).

Required Vote Gained

Except for anticipated verbal opposition by Democratic members, the House had little difficulty in rounding up the required number of votes to pass the Senate's Selbert bill, calling for separation of the state and national tickets at the November election.

The final vote on the measure was 95-31. The two-thirds vote required for passage as an emergency measure included all available Republican votes and the "yea" vote of one Democratic member, Gus Kasch, Akron.

In addition to the six-point program for which he called the session, Governor Bricker last night sent a supplemental message to the legislature urging enactment of a bill to give Ohio corporations permission to manufacture "implements of war." Bricker's message said, in part:

"Under the laws of the state of Ohio corporations conducting a manufacturing business are limited in the scope of their activities by the statements of the purpose for which they are organized. The limitations will definitely curtail the resources of the state in the production of military implements and other articles deemed necessary for the state and national defense.

"For this reason, I believe it highly desirable that the laws of the state be amended so as to promote and assist in the state and national defense.

The message resulted in passage of the Ward-Blum bill authorizing Ohio corporations to "conduct and carry on a business of manufacturing and selling or performing any services with respect to any article intended for use or deemed useful in the state and national defense."

Question Debated

The Selbert bill proposing to separate the state and national tickets in November brought spirited debate in the House before it was passed.

Democratic members contended that Republicans favored the measure because they were afraid the Roosevelt administration would return to power.

Several times House Speaker William McCulloch was forced to rap for order as GOP members jeered Democratic opponents of the measure.

Debate finally was closed after two hours when Rep. William Ashbolt (R-Lorain) moved the previous question.

Measures which Republican leaders said would be credited to the special session of the 93rd General Assembly were:

1—Myers-Shaw bill to appropriate $1,460,357 to the welfare department for poor relief to be distributed to municipalities.

2—Selbert bill to separate state

GREAT ENGLISH SHIP MAY HAUL CANADIAN FORCE

NEW YORK, June 20—As fueling of the Queen Elizabeth, the world's largest liner, continued steadily today, reports were again circulating that she will soon slip out of New York Harbor for war duty.

It was believed the Queen Elizabeth was destined as a troop-ship to carry 20,000 Canadian soldiers to Great Britain. A crew of 300 or 400 men to man her was reported to be arriving on the Britannic which is expected soon in New York Harbor.

There was also renewed activity aboard the French liner Normandie berthed next to the Queen Elizabeth but French officials continued to assert the $38,000,000 ship will remain in here for the duration of the war.

COLUMBUS, June 20—An alleged attempt to make an illegal redemption of sales tax stamps having a cash value of $962 is being investigated by State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, he announced today.

He said he had been informed that one of his own employees and a Franklin County employee were attempting to make the illegal redemption.

TOKYO, June 20 — Wilbur Fleisher, editor of the Japan Advertiser, an American newspaper published in Tokyo, today deliberated a challenge to duel issued by Count Maocchi De Cellere, a member of the Italian embassy staff.

The count called at Fleisher's home and demanded an apology for an editorial appearing in the Advertiser stressing the fact that Italy had withheld entrance into the war until France was on the verge of defeat.

De Cellere also demanded a retraction, which Fleisher declined to make. The embassy official termed the editorial an "insult" to Premier Mussolini.

and Teddy Roosevelt, and led to Taft's defeat by Woodrow Wilson.

PINCHOT'S LETTER

Today, the embers of the old feud have been fanned into flame again. Gifford Pinchot, Chief Forester under Teddy Roosevelt, is waging a bitter war against Ickes' proposal to transfer the Forest Service from the Agriculture Department to Interior. Resentful over the Saturday Evening Post article, he also demands that the GOP convention devote a plank to the denunciation of Ickes, who defended a Republican.

He makes this demand despite the fact that Senator Bob Taft will be a power at that convention. And Bob Taft is the son of the President whom Pinchot helped to wreck, and whom Ickes defended.

It all sounds cock-eyed, but anyway here is part of the two-page letter Pinchot has sent to Republican delegates:

"Why not put a plank in the Republican platform pledging the party to keep the Forest Service untouched in the Department of Agriculture? It would not please Ickes. . . Such a pledge would be all gain and no loss. It would attract much strength and drive none away. . . Ickes is trying to tear down the work of the Republican Party under Theodore Roosevelt. . . The only shadow of excuse for the proposed transfer is Ickes' lust for power, which is notorious."

ICKES' REPLY

When Secretary Ickes received a copy of this letter from a Republican friend, he sat down and wrote to Pinchot as follows:

"Dear Giff: I think your plank idea excellent and I suggest it read like this: 'We denounce the effort recently made by a certain power-lusting New Dealer to clear the name of the late Richard A. Ballinger, Secretary of the Interior in the Taft Administration.

"And we denounce as unjustifiable and hurtful to the national interest the fact that no public office is adorned by Gifford Pinchot, who, as time goes on, stands out ever more brilliantly as one of the most illustrious, if self-effacing, patriots that the country has even produced.

"We denounce in unsparring terms the unholy conspiracy between the late Secretary Ballinger, the late Attorney General Wickersham, and the late President Taft, that resulted in the discharge from Federal Service of Gifford Pinchot for insubordination, thus causing irreparable injury to the country and the Republican Party. . ."

Note:—Strange as it seems, Ickes and Pinchot once fought side-by-side as ardent Bul Mooseers to elect Teddy Roosevelt.

U. S. CHAMBERLAINS

Down in Wall Street you already hear brokers suggesting that with Hitler ruling the world it might be wise for the United States to begin warming up to him.

In fact, some Wall Streeters suggest that the best way to do this is to defeat Roosevelt as an evidence of friendship to Hitler, which would cause him to deal more leniently with the United States.

Even in the State Department, which of course never did agree with Mr. Roosevelt's social ideas, there are a few men, through a minority, who are beginning to say that it is now time to be friendly to Hitler.

Note:—This attitude brought the following remark from a White House adviser: "Yes, the leniency we get from Hitler will be about the same as he gave Chamberlain."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Besides having a father who was President and a grandfather who was Secretary of War in the Grant cabinet, Senator Bob Taft also had a grandfather who was Minister to Austria and Ambassador to Russia when Czar Alexander II was assassinated. . . . The desk used by Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson is a huge, carved table of Horduran mahogany that has been in the War Department for more than 100 years. . . . SESSION NEARS CLOSE

All Other Measures Asked
By Administration Win
Sufficient Votes

COLUMBUS, June 20—Legislation permitting Ohio corporations to manufacture implements of war for national defense took the spotlight today as the 93rd General Assembly prepared to wind up its special session by acting swiftly on the last of emergency measures submitted by Governor Bricker.

In a last minute message, Bricker urged the legislature to authorize industry to aid in the defense program. The assembly responded with lightning speed by passing the Ward-Blum bill by a vote of 32-0 in the Senate and 119-0 in the House.

(Under existing laws, Ohio concerns are limited to manufacture articles for which they were organized.)

Final action by the Senate on the Hayden bill to boost Old Age Pensions from a maximum of $30 to $40 per month and the Roberts bill to increase aid to needy blind was all that remained before the legislature adjourned.

Meeting To End

Legislative leaders predicted that the entire emergency program would be completed this afternoon to permit members to attend the Republican National convention which opens in Philadelphia Monday.

Previously, in sessions that lasted until midnight, the upper and lower chambers completed passage of bills that split the national and state tickets, appropriated additional funds for relief, old age pensions and dependent children, and authorized Ohio corporations to manufacture implements of war.

In addition to those mentioned, the Republican-dominated Assembly passed numerous resolutions, and the Senate confirmed appointments made by the governor since the regular session adjourned last year.

Opposition by business organizations on the proposal to increase pensions to $40 per month and the Democratic minority on the entire program had little or no effect on the way the GOP-controlled Assembly voted on the various measures.

Despite concerted opposition by the Ohio Chamber of Commerce and other business and industrial organizations, Senate leaders predicted that the upper Chamber would pass the Hayden bill calling for an increase in Old Age pensions to a maximum of $40 per month.

No opposition was expected in the Senate on the Roberts bill which would increase aid to needy blind persons from $400 to $480 per year and place county employees engaged in administration of such funds under civil service. The Hayden bill was passed last night by the House by a vote of 109-7. Those voting against the measure were Representatives Wilford B. Bixler (D-Summit); Joseph R. Duffy (D-Cuyahoga); Evans Griffith (R-Portage); Denver A. Ford (R-Fulton); George J. Harter (D-Summit); Thomas P. McElroy (D-Putnam); and L. A. Morehead (R-Harrison).

Required Vote Gained

Except for anticipated verbal opposition by Democratic members, the House had little difficulty in rounding up the required number of votes to pass the Senate's Seibert bill, calling for separation of the state and national tickets at the November election.

The final vote on the measure was 95-31. The two-thirds vote required for passage as an emergency measure included all available Republican votes and the "yea" vote of one Democratic member, Gus Kasch, Akron.

In addition to the six-point program for which he called the session, Governor Bricker last night sent a supplemental message to the legislature urging enactment of a bill to give Ohio corporations permission to manufacture "implements of war." Bricker's message said, in part:

"Under the laws of the state of Ohio corporations conducting a manufacturing business are limited in the scope of their activities by the statements of the purpose for which they are organized. The limitations will definitely curtail the resources of the state in the production of military implements and other articles deemed necessary for the state and national defense.

"For this reason, I believe it highly desirable that the laws of the state be amended so as to promote and assist in the state and national defense.

The message resulted in passage of the Ward-Blum bill authorizing Ohio corporations to "conduct and carry on a business of manufacturing and selling or performing any services with respect to any article intended for use or deemed useful in the state and national defense."

Question Debated

The Seibert bill proposing to separate the state and national tickets in November brought spirited debate in the House before it was passed.

Democratic members contended that Republicans favored the measure because they were afraid the Roosevelt administration would return to power.

Several times House Speaker William McCulloch was forced to rap for order as GOP members jeered Democratic opponents of the measure.

Debate finally was closed after two hours when Rep. William Ashbolt (R-Lorain) moved the previous question.

Measures which Republican leaders said would be credited to the special session of the 93rd General Assembly were:

1—Myers-Shaw bill to appropriate $1,460,387 to the welfare department for poor relief to be distributed to municipalities.

2—Seibert bill to separate state

COLLEGE BOY'S WAR THOUGHTS

THERE has been some discussion lately as to what young people are thinking of this present-day world, and what, if anything, they propose to do about it. Here is a letter from a Cornell boy which presents two strikingly different viewpoints.

"I am praying that the British Empire be saved," he writes. "At heart I have always agreed with the belief that we as a nation should stick with those other countries which believe in the same way of life as we do here. Because I feel that an Allied defeat would be a major disaster for the United States, I heartily favor giving them all the help of which we are capable. If we were decently prepared and equipped, I would even favor going over there and taking an active part in the war.

"After this war (if it comes out right) we mustn't make the same mistake as last time. We must take a position of responsibility and leadership in some world organization. Since the present situation is to a large degree our fault, I'm ashamed of Uncle Sam for not doing his part now."

Then he tells sadly of a friend who has an entirely different attitude. "He says that what happens in Europe and other parts of the world is none of our business, but that even if the United States were invaded, no one should fight. He seems to believe that nothing is worth fighting for.

"When a nation, particularly its youth, takes that attitude," declares the boy who wants to fight, "it is a decadent nation and doesn't deserve to survive any more. Fortunately I am positive that that isn't the attitude of most of my generation, although most of them are still against saving ourselves in the long run by crossing the water to fight what they still blindly call Europe's War."

THE Chicago divorce courts handle a good many cases in a year, but the men who preside over them seem to be immune to the quarrels and complaints about which they hear so much. A reporter checked the other day and found that seven out of eight judges giving most of their time to divorce cases were happily married men with families. The eighth was a bachelor but, he himself hastened to explain, not because of disillusionment. He's just been too busy to get married.

One judge has been married 52 years. He has referred 49,000 marital battles and patched up 3,600 of them. In his office he has pictures of his wife, his sons and their wives, his daughter, his eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. He says that seeing so many un-

NAVY OUT OF NAZI HANDS?

WASHINGTON—The White House is not advertising it, but the disposition of the French fleet was one vital point which came up in secret discussion with the French just before their capitulation.

Roosevelt wanted to make sure that the French Navy would not fall into Nazi hands. For France's warships could just about tip the balance of naval power and give the Nazis a powerful striking arm in the South Atlantic against Latin America.

The French have two brand-new 26,000-ton battleships, the Strasbourg and the Dunkerque, probably the fastest in the world; also two new 35,000-ton battleships, the Richelieu and the Jean Bart, the latter not quite completed. These, added to the German fleet, would give Hitler ten battleships against fifteen for the United States, all much older and slower.

When you consider that twelve U. S. battleships are kept in the Pacific, with only three in the Atlantic, you get a rough idea of how difficult it would be for this country to defend the Monroe Doctrine if Hitler got the French fleet. Another thing he might get which would add to our Monroe Doctrine problem is the French naval base at Dakar, on the bulge of Africa jutting out toward Brazil.

All of this is one of the important reasons why Roosevelt has been moving every possible war supply to the Allies. The French gave private assurance that in return for American aid they would do everything in their power to make sure that their ships did not fall into German hands but would take refuge in African and American waters.

NOTE:—In addition to the fifteen old battleships, the United States recently has launched two new war monsters, but it will take several months to complete them.

PINCHOT PLANK FOR GOP??

As if the Republicans didn't have enough trouble writing a platform, ex-Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania wants to add to their headaches.

In a personal letter to every one of the 1,000 convention delegates, he seriously proposes that the famous Ballinger case be fought all over again by writing into the platform a sizzling anti-Ickes plank.

The Pinchot proposal goes back to a Washington Merry-Go-Round disclosure that Ickes had unearthed evidence exonerating Richard A. Ballinger, Secretary of the Interior in the Taft Administration, from corruption in handling Alaskan coal lands. Ickes followed the Merry-Go-Round story with an article in The Saturday Evening Post in which he not only defended Ballinger, but indirectly also William Howard Taft.

Probably never was a Spring when plants and trees did as well as now. Have noted extremely heavy foliage wherever I have gone.

Out and about the ville, bowing to Wallace Crist and Doctor Courtwright and stopped to chat with Jim Yost, the hardware man. Heard a report that the American Legion deal for the C. A. C. has fallen through and did regret the fact. Had hoped that the property would be taken over by an organization that would maintain the one and only gymnasium in the ville. Then, too, the Legion may need real quarters if we continue our march toward war.

Ned Groom and his daughter,

Frances, visited the plant, accompanied by their pet lamb, "Agnes." The lamb is very much like Mary's following Frances wherever she goes and needing no leash even when visiting the downtown district. Cute pets are lambs. We had one once on the ranch and thought a lot of it, but so did a coyote and the coyote took possession. I fear that Ned will have a problem on his hands when the lamb becomes a sheep. Not so cute then.

Came a boy to the office carrying a great box and selling ice cream cups and sandwiches. Told me that he makes a minimum of a dollar a day. Not bad for a kid. Did look the youngster over very carefully and decided that he will amount to something one day unless he falls under the mounting spell of something for nothing.

A letter from Pop Betz, Jim Stout, Jay Clark and Ed Bach who are vacationing in Ontario and who report increased fishing luck following a week or more of weather that kept them off the water. Intend coming back to the States next week and stopping off at Brevort lake on the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. That is Circleville's Chub Fleet, Jim, Pop and Jay all buying new boats and motors in the early Spring.

Note these new highway markings that extend even into the ville. Don't cross that yellow line when it is on your side of the white center marking unless you wish introduction to an officer. Crossing is okeh when the yellow is on the far side of the white line.

Into the office came Jimmie Smith, who must be all of nine years of age. "Got any kind of a job around here that a fellow like me could hold down?" he asked. I didn't have and I was disappointed in not being able to meet the request of such an ambitious young man. And the time was early morning, too, not the middle of the afternoon.

Training Is Slow

They cannot be entirely cured because nerve cells once destroyed can never be restored, but areas of the nervous system which are still intact can often take up the work of the damaged sections, and be trained to do some of the useful work in life. They have to be trained slowly and carefully to make certain muscular movements and it is found that with this training they often can do so.

In a case of this kind, a mother taught her spastic son to move first one finger and then another. It was slow work, hour after hour. After the fingers he moved to the arms, the toes, and the feet. Eventually she transformed him from an almost helpless, lurching cripple to a human being who had about 50 per cent control over his movements.

Emergencies sometimes cause these people to realize that they have more control over their muscles than they suspect. One boy who was being trained, was taken out in a boat by his father, coaxed into the water and told to swim. He thought at first it was a joke, but his father rowed away and insisted he swim for himself.

Gains Confidence

When he saw the situation was serious he said to himself, "Now is the time to show what your training has done for you" and grimly struck out and swam far enough so that by the time his father decided the lesson had been learned, he had gained confidence in himself and can now swim with pleasure and benefit to himself.

At the Neurologic Institute in New York, a special clinic held for these unfortunate, teaches them slowly to make purposeful movements. They are taught to walk by focusing their vision on a chalk line on the floor or a painted point in the distance. A story related of one case is of a boy who was not able to walk at all until one day the clinic doctor, to his surprise, found him walking pretty well and noticed that he had on white shoes. The way his feet stood out to his eyes taught him how to use them.

Doctor Osler said once that "Most of us walk by faith." A great many cripples have to walk by sight but that is better than not walking at all.

In many faults—stammering, mental defectiveness, hard of hearing—this sort of training is bringing gratifying results.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

ON THE morning that Jeremy Tucker had his first boxing lesson and "taught" his first girl how to swim, he did perhaps the most talking he had ever done in any half day. Gayle teased a lot. His grandfather, and Mr. Weems, had some friendly things to say to him. And when the six "Merrifield girls" arrived they heard about the early hour boxing and swimming and they further gave him "the works." Only Bill Bailey took no part in the hearty bantering and laughing; Bill was off somewhere in a huddle with himself.

Tempe Hyde saw Jeremy momentarily alone at 9 a. m., and she quietly left the other girls and went to him.

"Jeremy," she said, "you have been awfully mean to me."

He looked down at the short, dainty girl in sudden consternation.

"I—I—I say!"

She dimpled at him—Tempe's dimple was an exclusive one, not always discovered save at close range—and gazed big-eyed at him through her spectacles.

"You promised me, days and days ago, to show me the library where you love to work. You said you would point out the books you used most. That was right after the first little dinner party, where I had to make a silly speech. Remember?"

"Oh, Yes! See here—I've been, uh, interested in so many things lately, the plays and all, that I haven't been in the library much myself, and—"

"Oh, but Jeremy! You mustn't neglect it." Tempe spoke in hushed intimate tone, ever so sweetly. She stood near him and took his arm and gazed up admiringly at him. You have a scholar's mind, Jeremy. A superior mind. I have been waiting, and waiting, and waiting."

That quite broke him down. He had planned some things for the morning, some attention to the new saddle horses and to costumes for the play, but now he apologized contritely to little Tempe and led her upstairs.

Nobody saw them go to the library. The other girls were in the east garden studying their play scripts. Male members of the household were scattered here and there. The whole wing of the mansion where the library was located seemed deserted save for Jeremy and Tempe. This realization brought a little touch of added intimacy.

Tempe sort of tripped each foot as she walked—tip-tap, tip-tap, tip-tap, little girl-like. Being little in mannerisms as well as in physical fact was somehow a part of her, seemed to enhance her feminine charm. This morning, too, she chewed gum, which added to the informality of her manner. She smiled up at him as she tip-tapped, talked lightly about everything, clung a little close as he held her elbow in escort.

The Merrifield books (destined eventually to be a magnificent gift to the city, for public use) were in the standardized library tiers, the high-sections forming a maze of narrow avenues in the great, high-ceilinged room. Several feet from the door Jeremy led her down one such carpeted aisle near to a window. Here, he said, were the books on archeology and related subjects. Nearby were the encyclopedia, and the poetry. He took down one fat tome.

"This is the latest summary of explorations in the cliff dwellings of our southwest," he said. "Down where Lola's home is. She has read it here, and discussed it with me."

Pretty Tempe suddenly looked displeased, pouty. Jeremy was busy fondling the book, however, and did not see her expression.

"Here is an old volume," he went on. "It is called 'Yesterday's Music,' and it has to do with the age-old chants and songs of the southwestern Indians. I have never seen one like it before. Most of the old chants would have been forgotten in another generation or so if this man hadn't studied them and set them down. The book is invaluable, I think."

Tempe's upper lip was drawn tight. She spoke a trifle spitefully, "I suppose Lola knows all about that, too?"

"Yes, in fact, she gave the book to me, Tempe. She knew about it and purchased it herself. Most of the chants used are those of her own homeland, where she—"

She lifted her lips and in a moment was kissing him ardently.

Tempe walked away from him. She went a few feet and stopped, her back turned toward him. But he still did not interrupt his line of thinking and talking, still caught no realization of tactlessness in his speech. In truth, he didn't know much about Tempe. He knew she was very pretty. He knew she could recite a lot of cute little rhymes and that she had a definite sparkle to her personality in a way that the other girls at The Oaks didn't quite show. But he knew nothing about her personality in the deeper sense. Nor did he, for that matter, know much about how to talk with any girl.

Tempe took a deep breath or two and came back near to him.

"I am so glad you like our American culture, Jeremy," she said, smiling again now. "The—white Americans, I, too, love to read. I could sit in my home forever with just a good book—and a man who loved me, Jeremy."

She ended on a wistful note, gazing out of the window. She sighed and turned to the shelves again. "Show me some more of your favorites, won't you, please? I know I shall like everything you do." She whispered it, smiling sweetly.

The whispering, and the almost tangible coyness and intimacy in the narrow book aisle subtly drew them nearer and nearer together in spirit. For a half hour he took down his books and exhibited them, standing near to her at times and reading passages with her over his shoulder. Once she wiped at her glasses, so he took them off for her and carefully cleaned them with a silk handkerchief that he carried for his own. When he was done, she did not take them back as proffered, but lifted her face, expecting him to put them on her. Her eyes were closed then, and her lips pursed ever so slightly and invitingly.

For a long second or two he paused there. The young man felt a quick, delightful sense of alarm. His blood raced, and he swallowed hard in an effort at control. He wondered why his bugaboo of shyness should strike him thus unexpectedly. A moment ago he had been thoroughly at ease, happy in the knowledge of fellowship and of the comradeship playing with Bill and Gayle earlier this morning. Now, though, this short dainty little person here in a dim library aisle was somehow overwhelming him.

Trembling a bit, he slipped her glasses on. He noted, to his great surprise, that they changed her completely. They gave her a look as of another person. She was perhaps prettier—in a physical way—without them; and yet he somehow liked her better with them on.

He was gentle about it, and when he took his hands down she suddenly opened her eyes again and smiled widely in thanks. The smile further disturbed him. The little shone brightly, and in his closeness to her here he could even see the delicate way she moistened her lips and gave life to them.

In the narrow aisle there was no table, no chairs. But there was a little four-step slanting stool, the kind sometimes used in kitchens. It served to stand on when one wanted books off the high shelves. Tempe was leaning now against it.

"You have such a melodious voice, Jeremy," she said, still whispering. "Please read some to me."

Jeremy gave serious thought to that, walked a few feet and brought back a book of poems. He moved to be nearer the window, and presently sat down on the stool, unconsciously, as she stood near him, listening. Her back was toward the window, her right side toward him.

Presently, as if enraptured by the word songs, she lifted her head to gaze at nothing. He read on. Very casually she leaned against him, her knee touching his rather long, slender leg. He was reading a scholarly bit from the classics, and quite naturally he was reading it well, slowly, distinctly, but in low tones which heightened their intimacy, speaking with genuine feeling.

When he came to the end with an inevitable dramatic trailing off of his voice, Tempe turned as if in a slow ecstasy of appreciation for the poetry, put her right arm around Jeremy and threw herself a little nearer to him. He lowered his book. He didn't know what was happening, but quite involuntarily he moved toward her. She lifted her lips, and in a moment was kissing him ardently.

Once, twice, three times she kissed him, and the third time he kissed her in return. He had no conscious thought of doing so; he just did it, impersonally, but positively.

Then the shock of it seemed to startle him. With unmannerly abruptness he stood up. His face was contorted in actual pain as he saw Tempe Hyde in an entirely new light, in new realization.

He put up his hands as if in defense, literally ran out of the library and down the long hall.

COLLEGE BOY'S WAR THOUGHTS

THERE has been some discussion lately as to what young people are thinking of this present-day world, and what, if anything, they propose to do about it. Here is a letter from a Cornell boy which presents two strikingly different viewpoints.

"I am praying that the British Empire be saved," he writes. "At heart I have always agreed with the belief that we as a nation should stick with those other countries which believe in the same way of life as we do here. Because I feel that an Allied defeat would be a major disaster for the United States, I heartily favor giving them all the help of which we are capable. If we were decently prepared and equipped, I would even favor going over there and taking an active part in the war.

"After this war (if it comes out right) we mustn't make the same mistake as last time. We must take a position of responsibility and leadership in some world organization. Since the present situation is to a large degree our fault, I'm ashamed of Uncle Sam for not doing his part now."

Then he tells sadly of a friend who has an entirely different attitude. "He says that what happens in Europe and other parts of the world is none of our business, but that even if the United States were invaded, no one should fight. He seems to believe that nothing is worth fighting for.

"When a nation, particularly its youth, takes that attitude," declares the boy who wants to fight, "it is a decadent nation and doesn't deserve to survive any more. Fortunately I am positive that that isn't the attitude of most of my generation, although most of them are still against saving ourselves in the long run by crossing the water to fight what they still blindly call Europe's War."

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

An example of freak weather made its appearance in Circleville, cold winds forcing the temperature down to the 55 degree mark, after the mercury had climbed to only 80 during the day.

Rear Admiral H. H. Christy, who had retired because of age, returned to his home in Washington, D. C., after spending a week with Mrs. Jay Wall, Watt Street, a relative.

Frank Hudson, Ashville Route 2, was among the first farmers of Pickaway County to report using new cabbage and potatoes from his garden. He had many heads of cabbage weighing two pounds or more and an exceptionally fine crop of early potatoes.

10 YEARS AGO

The G. H. Adkins garage at Atlanta was robbed of automobile tires, inner tubes, a radiator and a typewriter with a total value of about $175.

Mrs. M. C. Seyfert, Miss Essie Reber and Miss Hulda Sey-fert attended the wedding of Miss Ellen Duffy and Mr. Richard John Gally at St. Luke's Church, Lakewood. Miss Duffy was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Duffy, formerly of Circleville.

Mr. and Mrs. John Seall attended the commencement exercises at Otterbein University, Westerville. Their daughter, Lucy, was one of the graduates.

25 YEARS AGO

Miss Alice Pauline Carpenter returned to her home in Darbyville after attending a houseparty of six at the home of Miss Emily Putnam of Greenfield. All of the group were students at Western College, Oxford.

Crist Brothers placed in service a one ton truck, forty horse power, four cylinder, worm drive, equipped with self starter and electric lights.

Miss Helen Black of East Main Street entertained at a six o'clock dinner in honor of Miss Lillian Wells, a bride-elect.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

ON THE morning that Jeremy Tucker had his first boxing lesson and "taught" his first girl how to swim, he did perhaps the most talking he had ever done in any half day. Gayle teased a lot. His grandfather, and Mr. Weems, had some friendly things to say to him. And when the six "Merrifield girls" arrived they heard about the early hour boxing and swimming and they further gave him "the works." Only Bill Bailey took no part in the hearty bantering and laughing; Bill was off somewhere in a huddle with himself.

Tempe Hyde saw Jeremy momentarily alone at 9 a. m., and she quietly left the other girls and went to him.

"Jeremy," she said, "you have been awfully mean to me."

He looked down at the short, dainty girl in sudden consternation.

"I—I—I say!"

She dimpled at him—Tempe's dimple was an exclusive one, not always discovered save at close range—and gazed big-eyed at him through her spectacles.

"You promised me days and days ago, to show me the library where you love to work. You said you would point out the books you used most. That was right after the first little dinner party, where I had to make a silly speech. Remember?"

"Oh, Yes! See here—I've been, uh, interested in so many things lately, the plays and all, that I haven't been to the library much myself, and—"

"Oh, but Jeremy! You mustn't neglect it." Tempe spoke in hushed intimate tone, ever so sweetly. She stood near him and took his arm and gazed up admiringly at him. "You have a scholar's mind, Jeremy. A superior mind. I have been waiting, and waiting, and waiting."

That quite broke him down. He had planned some things for the morning, some attention to the new saddle horses and to costumes for the play, but now he apologized contritely to little Tempe and led her upstairs.

Nobody saw them go to the library. The other girls were in the east garden studying their play scripts. Male members of the household were scattered here and there. The whole wing of the mansion where the library was located seemed deserted save for Jeremy and Tempe. This realization brought a little touch of added intimacy.

Tempe took of tripped each foot as she walked—tip-tap, tip-tap, tip-tap, little-girl like. Being little in mannerisms as well as in physical fact was somehow a part of her, seemed to enhance her feminine charm. This morning, too, she chewed gum, which added to the informality of her manner. She smiled up at him as she tip-tapped, talked lightly about everything, clung a little close as he held her elbow in escort.

The Merrifield books (destined eventually to be a magnificent gift to the city, for public use) were in the standardized library tiers, the high-sections forming a maze of narrow avenues in the great, high-ceilinged room. Several feet from the door Jeremy led her down one such carpeted aisle near to a window. Here, he said, were the books on archeology and related subjects. Nearby were the encyclopaedia, and the poetry. He took down one fat tome.

"This is the latest summary of explorations in the cliff dwellings of our southwest," he said. "Down where Lola's home is. She has read it here, and discussed it with me."

Pretty Tempe suddenly looked displeased, pouty. Jeremy was busy fondling the book, however, and did not see her expression.

"Here is an odd volume," he went on. "It is called 'Yesterday's Music,' and it has to do with the ancient chants and songs of the southwestern Indians. I have never seen one like it before. Most of the old chants would have been forgotten in another generation or so if this man hadn't studied them and set them down. The book is invaluable, I think."

Tempe's upper lip was drawn tight. She spoke a trifle spitefully. "I suppose Lola knows all about that, too?"

"Yes, in fact, she gave the book to me, Tempe. She knew about it and purchased it herself. Most of the chants used are those of her own homeland, where she—"

She lifted her lips and in a moment was kissing him ardently.

Tempe walked away from him. She went a few feet and stopped, her back turned toward him. But he still did not interrupt his line of thinking and talking, still caught no realization of tactlessness in his speech. In truth, he didn't know much about Tempe. He knew she was very pretty. He knew she could recite a lot of cute little rhymes and that she had a definite sparkle to her personality in a way that the other girls at The Oaks didn't quite show. But he knew nothing about her personality in the deeper sense. Nor did he, for that matter, know much about how to talk with any girl.

Tempe took a deep breath or two and came back near to him. "I am so glad you like our American culture, Jeremy," she said, smiling again now. "The—white Americans, I, too, love to read. I could sit in my home forever with just a good book—and a man who loved me, Jeremy."

She ended on a wistful note, gazing out of the window. She sighed and turned to the shelves again. "Show me some more of your favorites, won't you, please? I know I shall like everything you do." She whispered it, smiling sweetly.

The whispering, and the almost tangible coziness and intimacy in the narrow book aisle subtly drew them nearer and nearer together in spirit. For a half hour he took down his books and exhibited them, standing near to her at times and reading passages with her over his shoulder. Once she wiped at her glasses, so he took them off for her and carefully cleaned them with a silk handkerchief that he carried for his own. When he was done, she did not take them back as proffered, but lifted her face, expecting him to put them on her. Her eyes were closed then, and her lips pursed ever so slightly and invitingly.

For a long second or two he paused there. The young man felt a quick, delightful sense of alarm. His blood raced, and he swallowed hard in an effort at control. He wondered why his bugaboo of shyness should strike him thus unexpectedly. A moment ago he had been thoroughly at ease, happy in the knowledge of fellowship and of the comradeship playing with Bill and Gayle earlier this morning. Now, though, this short dainty little person here in a dim library aisle was somehow overwhelming him.

Trembling a bit, he slipped her glasses on. He noted, to his great surprise, that they changed her completely. They gave her a look as of another person. She was perhaps prettier—in a physical way—without them; and yet he somehow liked her better with them on.

He was gentle about it, and when he took his hands down she suddenly opened her eyes again and smiled widely in thanks. The smile further disturbed him. The little dimple played. Exquisite teeth shone brightly, and in his closeness to her here he could even see the delicate way she moistened her lips and gave life to them.

In the narrow aisle there was no table, no chairs. But there was a little four-step slanting stool, the kind sometimes used in kitchens. It served to stand on when one wanted books off the high shelves. Tempe was leaning now against it.

"You have such a melodious voice, Jeremy," she said, still whispering. "Please read some to me." Jeremy gave serious thought to that, walked a few feet and brought back a book of poems. He moved to be nearer the window, and presently sat down on the stool, unconsciously, as she stood near him, listening. Her back was toward the window, her right side toward him.

Presently, as if enraptured by the word songs, she lifted her head to gaze at nothing. He read on. Very casually she leaned against him, her knee touching his rather long, slender leg. He was reading a scholarly bit from the classics, and quite naturally he was reading it well, slowly, distinctly, but in low tones which heightened their intimacy, speaking with genuine feeling.

When he came to the end with an inevitable dramatic trailing off of his voice, Tempe turned as if in a slow ecstasy of appreciation for the poetry, put her right arm around Jeremy and threw herself a little nearer to him. He lowered his book. He didn't know what was happening, but quite involuntarily he moved toward her. She lifted her lips, and in a moment was kissing him ardently.

Once, twice, three times she kissed him, and the third time he kissed her in return. He had no conscious thought of doing so; he just did it, impersonally, but positively.

Then the shock of it seemed to startle him. With unmanly abruptness he stood up. His face was contorted in actual pain as he saw Tempe Hyde in an entirely new light, in new realization.

He put up his hands as if in defense, literally ran out of the library and down the long hall.

The spacious parlors and dining room of the Baldwin home were beautifully decorated with baskets and vases of red roses.

Mrs. D. E. Pittinger, regent, presided at the meeting which opened at 2 p. m. with the ritualistic service and group singing of "America." Mrs. Oscar Finley led the flag service.

In the book "French Blood in America", she continued, the author, Lucian D. Fosdick, quotes Henry Cabot Lodge as saying, of the American Huguenots, "I believe that in proportion to their numbers, the Huguenots produced and gave to the American Republic more men of ability than any other race. Among them are Paul Revere, John Adams, second vice president of the United States, John Jay, first chief justice, Alexander Hamilton, John C. Fremont, H. W. Longfellow, Commodore Schley, Stephen Decatur, the Du- ponts, John Tyler, James A. Garfield, John G. Whittier and many others—the story of John Al- den and Priscilla Mullins."

Council Hears Appeal For Increased Police Pensions

Member Of Board Appears;
Present Payment Fixed
By Law At $50

$25 BOOST SUGGESTED

Amount Of Money Put In
Treasury By Officers
Cited In Request

A move to increase pensions for city policemen was made Wednesday evening when Emmett Crist, member of the Pension Board, appeared before the council and asked that police pensions be increased from $50 per month to $75 per month, or to three-fourths of the officers' salaries.

He told councilmen that he believed the increase was justified because 2 percent of the patrolmen's salaries is now being placed in the pension fund, as well as all witness fees collected by the officers.

He pointed out that last year the police department had collected revenue amounting to almost $12,000, more than paying the salaries of its employees.

The increase in the pension would amount to about $300 he said, and would not apply to the two former officers now on pensions.

Other members of the Pension Board are J. H. Helwigen, J. D. Mason, Patrolman George Green, Police Chief William McCrady and Harry Moore.

Dads Okeh Collector Of Sewage Rentals

An ordinance creating an office of Collector of Sewage Disposal Funds was passed by Council after it had suspended its three-reading ruling and vote immediately on the ordinance. The ordinance provides that the collector, whose term of office shall coincide with the office of the city auditor, will be appointed by the city auditor with the consent and approval of the council. The salary of the collector will be $15 a week, not to exceed eight weeks in any one quarter, and will be paid out of the sewage rental and sewage disposal plant funds.

The service director will make a survey each quarter to determine whether all connections to the sewage system are being made and will make a report of his findings to the collector.

No person was suggested for the position.

Council To Consider Industrial Wastes

City Solicitor Joe Adkins suggested to Council that an ordinance fixing permanent sewage disposal assessment rates for four Circleville industries, the Container Corporation, the Winorr Canning Company, the Esmeralda Canning Company and the Pickaway Dairy Company be passed. A temporary four-month ordinance regarding rates, passed by Council July 19, 1939, expired last fall and since that time no ordinance has been in effect. Temporary rates were set under the old ordinance so that adequate data could be collected to determine fair and equitable charges. No action was taken on the measure at the meeting, but council may consider it in a special session.

Barber Appeals For Hour Schedule Change

Ed Millrons, Circleville barber, appeared before Council to protest the opening and closing hours of the proposed barber shop ordinance.

He stated that when he signed a petition for the ordinance, which provides Circleville barbers be licensed and shops open at 8 a. m. and close at 7 p. m., there was no clause in it regulating barber shop hours.

Millrons said he felt barber shops should open at 7 a. m. and close at 8 p. m. to give farmers an opportunity to get into the shops before starting to work in the morning or after work in the evening.

His request will be considered at the third reading of the ordinance in the next council session.

$500 Claim Filed For Alleged X-ray Error

Mrs. Marie Walters, Five Points, filed a claim with Council for $500 medical fees which she said she paid because of an alleged careless examination by a Berger Hospital technician. In her claim she said that after she had received injuries in an auto accident in October, 1939 she had gone to Berger Hospital where she was told by the technician that she had no broken bones. Four weeks later she stated she was examined by an Ashville doctor who told her she had a broken collar bone. Council referred the matter to the laws and claims committee.

City Department Told To Fix Jewell Wall

Leonard Morgan, service director, was instructed by council to make necessary repairs to a cellar wall at the home of Charles Jewell, Route 3, Circleville. The action was taken after Jewell had told councilmen at their last meeting, that a city sewer, constructed too close to his dwelling, had overflowed and washed out the foundation under his house.

Engineer To Establish Park Street Grades

Following requests for water service by persons building dwellings in the Park Street area, Council instructed Acting City Engineer George Crum to make necessary gradings so that water mains may be extended to those houses.

Solicitor Given $100 More For Clerk Hire

An additional $100 for clerk hire for Solicitor Joe Adkins was granted by Council. The appropriation was necessary because of the increased amount of work coming into his office, Solicitor Adkins said.

Officials Put Okeh On $3,000 Bond Issue

A $3,000 bond issue for the construction and permanent improvement of Circleville streets, received its final reading and passage in Council. The funds will be used for permanent improvement on Watt Street and on Reber Avenue and adjoining alleys.

ANOTHER movie star's name has been added to Hollywood's suddenly increasing hospital list—Cesar Romero, above, noted for his portrayal of gangster roles, has been rushed to a hospital suffering from high temperature. Physicians feared he may have typhoid.

ARMY OF 100,000 JEWS MAY FORM TO AID ENGLAND

NEW YORK, June 20—Plans to organize an army of 100,000 Jews to fight with England and her Allies against Germany were speeded up today with the raising of a $10,000 war chest by the new Zionist organization.

Recruits for the projected Jewish army will come chiefly from Jewish refugees driven from Germany and other countries invaded by the Nazis, according to Vladimir Jabotinsky who led the Jewish battalions which fought in Palestine in the World War and now is president of the new Zionist organization.

Col. J. H. Patterson, commander of the Jewish battalions in the World War, who with Jabotinsky addressed a rally last night at which the $10,000 was raised, urged all factions to reconcile their differences and stressed the need for airmen particularly.

Council Hears Appeal For Increased Police Pensions

A move to increase pensions for city policemen was made Wednesday evening when Emmett Crist, member of the Pension Board, appeared before the council and asked that police pensions be increased from $50 per month to $75 per month, or to three-fourths of the officers' salaries.

He told councilmen that he believed the increase was justified because 2 percent of the patrolmen's salaries is now being placed in the pension fund, as well as all witness fees collected by the officers.

He pointed out that last year the police department had collected revenue amounting to almost $12,000, more than paying the salaries of its employees.

The increase in the pension would amount to about $300 he said, and would not apply to the two former officers now on pensions.

Other members of the Pension Board are J. H. Helwagen, J. D. Mason, Patrolman George Green, Police Chief William McCrady and Harry Moore.

Dads Okeh Collector Of Sewage Rentals

An ordinance creating an office of Collector of Sewage Disposal Funds was passed by Council after it had suspended its three-reading ruling and vote immediately on the ordinance. The ordinance provides that the collector, whose term of office shall coincide with the office of the city auditor, will be appointed by the city auditor with the consent and approval of the council. The salary of the collector will be $15 a week, not to exceed eight weeks in any one quarter, and will be paid out of the sewage rental and sewage disposal plant funds.

The service director will make a survey each quarter to determine whether all connections to the sewage system are being made and will make a report of his findings to the collector. No person was suggested for the position.

Council To Consider Industrial Wastes

City Solicitor Joe Adkins suggested to Council that an ordinance fixing permanent sewage disposal assessment rates for four Circleville industries, the Container Corporation, the Winorr Canning Company, the Esmeralda Canning Company and the Pickaway Dairy Company be passed. A temporary four-month ordinance regarding rates, passed by Council July 19, 1939, expired last fall and since that time no ordinance has been in effect. Temporary rates were set under the old ordinance so that adequate data could be collected to determine fair and equitable charges. No action was taken on the measure at the meeting, but council may consider it in a special session.

Barber Appeals For Hour Schedule Change

Ed Millirons, Circleville barber, appeared before Council to protest the opening and closing hours of the proposed barber shop ordinance.

He stated that when he signed a petition for the ordinance, which provides Circleville barbers be licensed and shops open at 8 a. m. and close at 7 p. m., there was no clause in it regulating barber shop hours.

Millirons said he felt barber shops should open at 7 a. m. and close at 8 p. m. to give farmers an opportunity to get into the shops before starting to work in the morning or after work in the evening.

His request will be considered at the third reading of the ordinance in the next council session.

$500 Claim Filed For Alleged X-ray Error

Mrs. Marie Walters, Five Points, filed a claim with Council for $500 medical fees which she said she paid because of an alleged careless examination by a Berger Hospital technician. In her claim she said that after she had received injuries in an auto accident in October, 1939 she had gone to Berger Hospital where she was told by the technician that she had no broken bones. Four weeks later she stated she was examined by an Ashville doctor who told her she had a broken collar bone. Council referred the matter to the laws and claims committee.

City Department Told To Fix Jewell Wall

Leonard Morgan, service director, was instructed by council to make necessary repairs to a cellar wall at the home of Charles Jewell, Route 3, Circleville. The action was taken after Jewell had told councilmen at their last meeting, that a city sewer, constructed too close to his dwelling, had overflowed and washed out the foundation under his house.

Engineer To Establish Park Street Grades

Following requests for water service by persons building dwellings in the Park Street area, Council instructed Acting City Engineer George Crum to make necessary gradings so that water mains may be extended to those houses.

Solicitor Given $100 More For Clerk Hire

An additional $100 for clerk hire for Solicitor Joe Adkins was granted by Council. The appropriation was necessary because of the increased amount of work coming into his office, Solicitor Adkins said.

Officials Put Okeh On $3,000 Bond Issue

A $3,000 bond issue for the construction and permanent improvement of Circleville streets, received its final reading and passage in Council. The funds will be used for permanent improvement on Watt Street and on Reber Avenue and adjoining alleys.

ARMY OF 100,000 JEWS MAY FORM TO AID ENGLAND

NEW YORK, June 20—Plans to organize an army of 100,000 Jews to fight with England and her Allies against Germany were speeded up today with the raising of a $10,000 war chest by the new Zionist organization.

Recruits for the projected Jewish army will come chiefly from Jewish refugees driven from Germany and other countries invaded by the Nazis, according to Vladimir Jabotinsky who led the Jewish battalions which fought in Palestine in the World War and now is president of the new Zionist organization.

Col. J. H. Patterson, commander of the Jewish battalions in the World War, who with Jabotinsky addressed a rally last night at which the $10,000 was raised, urged all factions to reconcile their differences and stressed the need for armen particularly.

REVOLTS BREAK OUT IN AFRICA AGAINST ITALY

LONDON, June 20—In every province of Ethiopia revolts are commencing against Italian authorities, a Reuters (British) dispatch from Djibouti, French Somaliland, said today.

The report added that Italian planes have been flying over Djibouti four times a day without dropping bombs.

It added that an Italian submarine was bombed by a British 20, 1939, that his job was being abolished.

The county man charges that the abolition was not bona fide and that another man is now performing the duties of superintendent.
